GAINS AND LOSSES IN KOREA

It is necessary to watch Russia's moves in the present crisis and to recognise her for what she is-the principal in the Korean showdown. That doesn't mean there must be delay or weakness in beating to a frazzle the North Korean aggressors. That little for the correctness of everything war has to be won: it has still to be won if, after all, help comes too late to save the peninsula and the United Na- bate. tions has to build up in Japan for another D-day of power and lightning at points along the long, exposed, and largely its dangers. But the certain unprotected Korean coast. There are many people, no doubt, who don't much care. who runs Korea so long as they are Koreans. That not the point. The act of aggression has raised other issues not so easily handed off: issues of principle and prestige which have got to be settled in favour of the United Nations, or the age of force will be upon us all.

The Russian stooges, doing their dubious work for them in Korea, have so far won most of the rounds on the ground. At sea and in the air matters are very different, and air control when fully developed will be as vital factor in this conflict as it was in the last world war. In the field of diplomacy the Russians have not won, but lost. BELIEVED RUSSIANS KEEPING DOOR FOR PEACE IN KOREA

United Nations delegate's cancellation of passage

Lake Success, July 11.

The Soviet delegate to the United Nations, Jacob Malik, cancelled his passage for home today amid indications that Russia is keeping the door open for a peace move in Korea.

Mr. Malik long ago had announced his intention of spending home leave in Russia. He cancelled reservations for his party aboard the Polish liner Batory, due to sail today. There were growing indications that a genuine peace move might emerge from the exchange of diplomatic notes now in progress between Britain and Russia. Britain asked Russia why the Kremlin had not replied to London's note paralleling one from Washington asking the Soviet to use its influence to halt the fighting in Koroa.

Diplomats here believed Russia ignored the American note and chose to reply to the British because Britain was not as directly involved in the Korean fighting as the United States. Washington, July 11. "Things are very serious and it would be a disservice to our people to give them any other impression", declared Senator Millard Tydings after a secret meeting of the Senate Armed Services Committee with General Omar Bradley, Chairman of the Chiefs of Staff, today.

Pakistan's offer of troops

....Washington, July 11. Pakistan was reported today to have made the first definite offer to back the United States "police" action in Korea with ground troops.

A Senator who did not wish his identity disclosed said that the Senate Armed Services Committee was told during a closed session today that Pakistan had offered foot soldlers to help the hard-pressed GIs.

He did not know the number of troops which might be involved. Presumably they would be token forces: The Senator recalled no mention that any other nation had made a similar offer.

The Pakistani offer it is presumed, was discussed when General Omar Bradley, chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, gave the Committee a report on the Korean war on behalf of General MacArthur,
